

The Call of the Wild
Vocabulary Practice #1 Too

Here are the answers.
How did you do?

Directions: Use your vocabulary assignment to complete the following sentences. Once you have properly completed each sentence, you should notice that you have created a nice little UFO incident. If you are not completely sure that you have every answer correct, you may want to download the answer sheet and check your work.

1. Two high school sweethearts sat in a cornfield, watching the Northern Lights, with little idea of the impending terror they were both about to experience.
2. The calm and light hearted evening soon metamorphosed into a night of panic and fear.
3. As the couple looked up in the sky, they noted a conspicuous disc shaped object, which stood out clearly against the flickering lights of the Aurora above.
4. Obscurely located in the middle of nowhere, this cornfield was not close to modern civilization, and the teens realized that they should try and get home as fast as possible.
5. To stay and find out more about this craft would have shown serious indiscretion in their decision making, so the teens decided to book out of there.
6. Resolutely, the two teenagers slammed their car doors shut, determined on avoiding any further contact with this unknown craft.
7. Looking at each other, both knew that it was imperative that they outrun the approaching UFO with their car, if they were to stay safe.
8. Above, the craft casually disappeared around the tree line, almost as if it was going to leave the teens alone, but this proved to be an insidious act. After a few seconds, the craft reemerged closer to the teens, and began following the couple down a rugged, Aurora-lit country road.
9. Daunted by the obviously superior technology they were up against, the male did his best to speed past the craft's moon-kissed shadow.
10. The solidarity between the two teens was shown as they worked together as a frightened team; the male managed the driving, while the female provided updates on the movements of the craft.

11. The task of navigating the shadowed and winding country roads proved arduous to the male driver as he struggled to keep his vehicle on course.
12. The unyielding craft was not letting up its focus on the teens; its inexorable shadow bore down upon them even faster.
13. The male could only wonder what the malignant intent was of the craft, which followed them. He fearfully thought back to the evil-minded aliens he had seen in science fiction movies.
14. Between tears, the female objectly cried, "Leave us alone!"
15. The teen's car futilely sped even faster; it was clear the craft was not phased by their efforts to be avoided.
16. Now the male had wished he was not a malingerer, and had reported for work at the Dairy Queen that night as he was supposed to.
17. Then, when all hope seemed to fade from the situation, the UFO, in one decisive and precipitate action, zipped across the sky faster than you could snap your fingers and disappeared among the thunderous display of flashing Northern Lights above.
18. The local newspaper ran an impartial story on the teens' encounter that night, which neither glorified their tale as true nor denied it as a hoax.
19. By reading this article, readers could have a vicarious UFO encounter themselves.
20. The story was not told placatingly to satisfy science fiction fans around the world, but to accurately recount the terror of the evening and force us to confront unknown questions of our universe.
